HONGRONG, TUESDAY, AUGUST 25, 1891

Tun directors of the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank had not a brilliant report to lay before the shareholders at the last halfyearly meeting. They had to tell of great losses instead of the great gains which made the February report so acceptable. The shareholders accepted the bad report as they did the good with little or no comment, being evidently satisfied that the staff and the directors had done their best. We could wish that Hongkong shareholders were a little less docile and had the courage to criticiss more than they themselves and whose interference does more harm than good. If the mutterings and whisperings were transformed into honest intelligent criticism a good deal would be done to improve the commercial reputation of Hongkong. It is not always when reports are bad that criticism is most required. The seeds of disaster are often sown in the seemingly presperous years. If the actions of the directors of the Hongkong Bank are open to hostile criticism, we are inclined to think the criticism ought to have come at the February meeting, when everything looked so bright, rather than at the meeting held last week. The Bank during the present half-year has suffered the inevitable result of the wild speculation in stocks and in silver. As far as its own speculations in silver went, the Bank gained largely, but the gain was at to supply the best growths at moderate the expense of others, and in the long run some of its constituents got into the ranks of the lospra. The profits were swallow-Spirit wanted, and initial letter for quality ed up in losses, and the corporation is perhaps worse off to-day than if a rise in the same result accrued from the share silver had never taken place. Much speculation. The large sums borrowed awelled the interest due to the Bank, but SI.00 after a time the extra profits were neutralised by the failure of several borrowers. The losses were perhaps unavoidable. The case was stated to me and I said I did not think they had any case. I said the other parties had bee in possession for over 21 years and made any claim with regard to the replumation. I use the words 'his own admission' because I learned from conversation that Tsun Sz had had an opportunity of sharing in the former reclamation if he liked to claim it and had not done so. I pointed out to the plaintiff that the lots he was claiming on were now inland lots. He thought that as the other parties had got the extensions connected with the old reclamations he ought to get the whole extension under the new reclamation.
